Think This Over.

When a newspaper gives you a lot of free advertising in order to boom some concert or entertainment in which you are interested, keep track of the lines that are printed week by week and multiply that number by the regular advertising rates of the paper. Compare the results with the actual money value of any favor that you get from any other business concern. Then take into consideration the fact that advertising and circulation are the only two things that a newspaper has to sell. Now, in these days of higher prices, how much do you think it ought to give away?

An Eventful Year.

The year 1914 has been filled with thrilling and world-stirring events. It is hard to realize just how fast and the main service, in which an English variously history has been written until we see a record of the year's happenings assembled. Such a record we give you this week on another page of the REGISTER. Do not fail to read it-you will get a far better idea of the trend of affairs than you have from each day's news.
